OVERVIEW

SF Music Day is daylong free music festival presented by InterMusic SF with performances by 36 Bay Area ensembles that span a wide range of sounds and practices, from Baroque to 21st century chamber music, jazz and improvised music, and music influenced by traditions from across the globe. Ensemble sizes range from intimate duos to string quartet to 7-piece combo. The festival, now in its eleventh year, showcases the diversity and breadth of the Bay Area music community. This year's theme, "Colors of the Keyboard" highlights the wide range of expression possible on that instrument, from tango accordion, to improvised music, classical repertoire, and electric organ.
